

The FRIBIS team “Network Analysis and Financial Diaries” (NetFi) is researching community currencies and investigating their use in UBI pilot projects. In the upcoming online event, the team will discuss various network analysis methods that can be used to learn about transaction data from the community currency project CirclesUBI. They will also discuss the benefits and risks associated with using community currencies for UBI pilots. In addition, the team will briefly report on the international research collaboration BIRAL and its future projects.

On August 5th 2021 at 9 am (GMT). Duration: approx. 45 minutes. Public event, Language: English

FRIBIS team NetFi

The FRIBIS team "Network Analysis and Financial Diaries" (NetFi) researches community currencies such as CirclesUBI and investigates their use in the context of UBI pilot projects. To this end, NetFi develops, among other things, programs that are made available to users free of charge and on which the team provides comprehensive advice. Learn more here

Lecture by Bernhard Neumärker

The Freiburg tradition of regulatory policy (Ordnungspolitik) and the Unconditional Basic Income – does that fit together at all? In his lecture, Bernhard Neumärker shows to what extent a UBI can indeed be integrated into a regulatory policy framework, provided that newer perspectives such as constitutional economics or social contract theory are taken into account. FRIBIS at the Freiburg Science Market

FRIBIS team MUBINGO

MUBINGO wants to find out what options are available to NGOs to help Unconditional Basic Income achieve greater social acceptance. To this end, the team uses the methods of innovation management and social marketing. The insights gained are directly incorporated into activist practice. Read more
