

Otto Lehto @FRIBIS

Visiting Scholar 2021

Otto Lehto's journey at FRIBIS: A visiting scholar talks about his time in Freiburg

In November and December 2021 philosopher and political economist Otto Lehto (PhD) came to Freiburg as a FRIBIS visiting scholar. We asked him how basic income research has changed in recent years, what he had gained from his time at FRIBIS and what research topics he would be focusing on in the future.

Read more

In an extensive video interview conducted by Enno Schmidt, Otto Lehto talks about the origins and theoretical foundations of liberalism, the Freiburg tradition of ordoliberalism and the question to what extent UBI is compatible with liberalism from today's perspective.

If you want to learn more about Otto Lehto and his research on UBI, check out this playlist on our YouTube channel.

"Ethics of UBI": a series of seminars by Karl Widerquist available on our YouTube channel

During the winter term 2021/22, GWP visiting professor Karl Widerquist gave a seminar on the "Ethics of UBI" at Freiburg University. Numerous well-known basic income researchers (among them Louise Haagh, Philippe van Parijs und Guy Standing) were invited to discuss their theories. The entire series of seminars is available now on YouTube.

"Basic Income Experiments" symposium by Roberto Merrill and Catarina Neves.

In November 2021, Roberto Merrill and Catarina Neves

PROF. ROBERTO MERRILL

ANA CATARINA NEVES

Basic Income Experiments

A Critical Examination of Their Goals, Contexts, and Methods came to Freiburg as FRIBIS visiting scholars. In their symposium Basic Income Experiments: A Critical Examination of Their Goals, Contexts, and Methods, now available on YouTube, they talk about what the results of basic income experiments tell us about the UBI.

Albert-Ludwigs-Universität Freiburg
Rempartstraße 10 79098 Freiburg Deutschland
<https://www.fribis.uni-freiburg.de/impressum/>

Newsletter abbestellen | zur Website